The ACM Symposium on Operating Systems Principles (SOSP) is the world's premier forum for computer systems software technology, representing activities in both academia and industry. It attracts the leading researchers and luminaries in the field and features the best and brightest of the Ph.D. candidates in computer systems. It was held only once every two years and has become an annual conference since 2024. SOSP'26 will be held in Prague, Czech Republic.

Industrial support has always been instrumental in making SOSP a success. We, the organizing committee, are writing to ask your organization to consider being a sponsor for SOSP'26.

A number of sponsorship levels are available, as listed further below. Sponsorship allows us to provide stipends for students to help cover their travel, lodging, meals, and conference registration. For example, in 2019, roughly 47% of the conference attendees were students, many of whom were supported, in part or in full, by industrial sponsors, and these students are made well aware of the sources of their stipends. Sponsorship also supports events such as receptions and our banquet dinner, during which important connections are established, and the delegates explore the research directions at industry labs and academic institutions.

We expect SOSP'26 to be an exceptional event and sincerely hope that you will be able to join us as a sponsor. For reference, information on previous years' SOSP's can be found at <http://www.sosp.org>.

Best Regards,

Sponsorship Opportunities and Benefits

SOSP is a select venue for recruiting and maintaining a strong pipeline of students. This includes influencing the research topics chosen by junior graduate students as well as recruiting finishing Ph.D. students as they decide where to go in the industry. Due to its prestige, SOSP provides a very strong branding and name recognition.

We will recognize sponsors:

- Platinum, Gold, Silver, or Bronze levels on the SOSP website based on the financial commitment;
- Displaying sponsor names, logos, and links on a wide variety of conference-related materials;
- The opportunities to name student grants and key conference events;
- The opportunities to distribute material to attendees at a reserved table;
- All sponsors have access to the entire contact list of students receiving travel grants.

The following pages provide more details on the different sponsorship categories planned. However, if you would like to pursue other ideas, please do not hesitate to reach out to any of us.

Please let us know at your earliest convenience if your organization can contribute, so we can plan our commitments accordingly. We appreciate your consideration of this request.
